Compass Informatics offers organisations the opportunity to scale up their GIS and GeoSpatial analysis capabilities on demand so you can get the right skills for your projects

Finding the right candidates to fill gaps in your teams can be time consuming and expensive, particularly when the skills you need are specific. This can be even more challenging when the positions you need are temporary with specific technical capabilities.

Specialised Talent

Compass has over 25 years' experience in delivering geospatial services to a variety of organisations around the world. Our senior team has 'done it before' which means we can help you deliver your strategic projects quickly and efficiently.

Proven Performance

We've forged successful, long term relationships with national authorities in Ireland, regional authorities in the UK and global organisations like the World Wildlife Fund so they can scale their GIS capability and expertise when needed. (References available)

We offer consultancy and secondments

Need someone for a longer period? We can hire them for you and place them into your organisation. You'll benefit from having the skills in house, without needing to have the technical skills in your senior team to manage performance.

For shorter term projects, we can provide you GIS analysts, Business Analysts, Python developers and Software Development roles.
